General information on health care

Only 5% of the Guinean population participate in the insurance fund. There are three types of insurances in Guinea: National Insurance Fund for Public Civil Servant (CNPAE); National Insurance Fund for Private Sector Employees (CNSS), and Individual Insurances for informal sector workers and freelancers. The insurance cost depends on the general conditions of each insurance contract. Participation in the National Insurance for Private Sector Employees is 18% contribution from the employer and 5% from the employee.

Availability of medical facilities and doctors

In Guinea, there are generally one or more medical facilities in many areas throughout the country. In urban areas, public hospitals, public health centers, and private clinics are the main medical facilities. The doctors and good equipment can be found in big hospitals and inexpensive clinics. In the capital city, Conakry, there are two public university hospitals: Donka and Ignace Deen. In rural areas, only the public health centers and some irregular clinics are operating. The medical staff there might not be well trained and have less equipment

Admissions to medical facilities

There are some insurance companies like UGAR, SOGAM, SONAG, SUNU, NSIA based in Conakry and regional towns, or Health Mutual in the Mamou region, where one can report for registration. The registration starts by providing an ID card, birth certificate, residential certificate, the commitment to pay insurance fees, the insurance general conditions approval and the process can be concluded after signing the agreement. The insured patients are referred first to the recommended clinics for their medical checkups. The process starts with an insurance card presentation. The common patients start their medical checkups at the nearest medical facility, generally, in the health centers, in the areas' clinics, or the big hospitals' emergency services. Admission procedures start with physical condition declaration and registration at the emergency service. The uninsured patients must pay for the medical checkup and treatment fees.

Availability and costs of medication

The medication availability depends on the occurrence of the disease in the area or in the country. The common diseases are (malaria, typhoid fever, parasitosis, diarrhea diseases) and medication is available in many pharmacies in urban areas. The cost of medication from a pharmacy is affordable for middle-class people, who are a minority in the country. The insurance companies can support 80% of the treatment cost for the insured patients. However, most of the Guinean resort to the street pharmacy or counterfeit medication. In rural areas, generic medication can be found in public health centers. For specific diseases, the medication should be imported.

1 Health Care

Access for returnees

Eligibility and requirements: Returnee to retain record of health exams, if willing to pursue checkup upon return.

Registration procedure: Returnee should address local health center for registration and obtaining health card. Likewise, the returnee should address local insurance company for registration and obtaining insurance card.

Required documents: The ID card, birth certificate and residential certificate.

General information on labour market

The Guinean labor market is characterized by two types of employment: Formal and Informal employment. Formal Employment is related to the registered employment, where the employees are registered at the National Insurance Fund. Informal Employment includes several types of employment amongst are rural workers, cultivators, farmers, self-employers (independents), non-registered enterprises' employees, etc. The Guinean population is estimated at 12.7 million inhabitants in 2017 and the country has 4.7 million labor force in 2017 and 2018 according to the latest estimates from the World Bank, of which 56% are male and 44% female. This value of employed workers corresponds to an overall employment rate of 59%, or 65% in 2017 and 2018, according to the latest estimates. This labor force rate corresponds to the average rate in sub-Saharan Africa. The 65% of active workers are composed as follows: public employee 3%; private employee 4%; independent 76%; other 17%. Since 2016, there have been 52% of jobs in the agricultural sector, followed by 34% in trade and 14% in industry and manufacturing. Extractive mining industries are the most important in Guinea.

Although the unemployment rate remains low. Income from jobs (Minimum interprofessional salary guarantee is GNF450 000 = EUR45) remains too low to lift households out of precarious living conditions. Excluding workers from the Ministry of Justice, the average salary ranges from EUR100 to EUR 350. General censuses of population and housing (RGPH) 2014 data shows that the unemployment rate is 5.2%. This unemployment rate hides disparities. It is 11.1% in urban areas against only 2.2% for rural areas. The informal employment rate is estimated at 95.6% of the total employed population (Institut national de la statistique, 2020).

Finding employment

The formal job seekers go through the employment agencies (public or private) or make contact directly with the companies or organizations, pass through family members or friends. The State Employment Agency (AGUIPE) supports registered job seekers by providing information and some training. The vacant positions are announced through several channels such as:

- The State Employment Agency (AGUIPE) headquarters and its seven branches in Kindia, Boké, Mamou, Labé, Faranah, Kankan and Nzérékoré;
- Newspapers (Journal des appels d'offres & Offres d'emplois; Lynx; Lance; Indépendant);
- Online press (www.jaoguinee.com www.guineenews.org, etc.).

Unemployment assistance

The job seekers can be assisted through their registration on the jobseeker's database, capacity building, and job opportunity information sharing. Assistance is provided by the Employment Agency (AGUIPE), and the private employment agencies, etc. The jobseeker can be only offered employment orientation and some training session attendance, but there is no financial assistance for unemployment.

Further education and training

The State Employment Agency (AGUIPE) offers some training sessions sometimes, such as how to develop the CV; practical techniques to look for a job, etc. The returnee can obtain specific information at the State Employment Agency (AGUIPE) headquarters and its seven branches in Kindia, Boké, Mamou, Labé, Faranah, Kankan, and Nzérékoré. Private employment agencies can also provide specific information

Access for returnees

Eligibility and requirements: Any Guinean national or ECOWAS national jobseeker can be registered at the State Employment Agency (AGUIPE) database. Any registered jobseeker can receive some specific information and orientation assistance.

Registration procedure: Returnee to address a local employment office for immediate employment needs. Likewise, Returnee to address a local central police station for re-issuance of lost/expired national ID.

Required documents: CV, degrees or diplomas, attestations, birth certificate, valid national identity card and residence certificate.

General information on housing

The cost of rent depends on many factors, including the geographic location and the type of accommodation. In Conakry, a room without a shower ranges from GNF 100,000 to GNF 2,000,000 excluding electricity and water. For an apartment with two bedrooms, a living room, a shower room, and a dining room, the amount is between GNF 500,000 and GNF 2,000,000. A tenroom villa in Nongo (Ratoma) will cost $ 7,000 a month while a four-room apartment in Matoto will cost $ 150 a month. Generally, there is something for all needs and at different prices. There is a shortage of electricity and water in the capital city and cities in the interior of the country. Rural areas have no access to electricity and running water. The cost of electricity ranges from EUR 5 to EUR 20 for two months period and water ranges from EUR 3 to EUR 15 EUR is almost the same for low-income and middle-class. households. In Guinea, empowerment goes hand in hand with the possibility of building your own house. The rural areas are entirely built by individuals. In several localities the house offer is available. The capital Conakry and the cities of the interior of the country are mainly built by individuals. They usually ask exorbitant sums from tenants and sometimes adopt questionable practices. The house offers that are available (single bedroom without a shower, bedroom, and living room with or without a shower, two bedrooms, and a living room with or without a shower.)

Finding accommodation

The main way to find accommodation in Guinea is to resort to private estate agencies. They are divided into formal and informal estate agencies. Formal Estate Agencies: These are registered companies to which the people resort for accommodation issues. They mediate between landlords and future tenants. At the end of the housing process, they require the payment of their commissions on the transactions. Informal Estate Agencies: These are unregistered individuals called "Demarcheurs" that negotiate with the landlords and the future tenants. They require the payment of their transportation fees before visiting the house/apartment to be rented. At the end of the housing process, they require a payment equivalent of onemonth rental as the commission from the future tenant. The advertisement can be found in the formal estate agencies' offices or informal estate agencies (Agence Immobilière de Hamdallaye).

Most recently, the new government (in power since september 2021) has proceeded with the recovery of illegally occupied public housing .i.e., the transitional government of guinea has recovered the real estate (mailing housing) of the state, which was previously occupied by senior officials and politicians. In other words, the Guinean transitional government has recovered the real estate of the state, occupied illegally until now by senior officials and politicians.

Social grants for housing

There are no social grants for housing in Guinea and no loans from the banks to the vulnerable people with low income. The state built some quarters for some category of people, but the first occupants of the housing estates never vacated the premises even after retirement or death. first occupants of the housing estates never vacated the premises even after retirement or death.

Access for returnees

Temporary housing facilities: Some local NGOs, like ONG Sabou Guinée, can provide temporary housing facilities for vulnerable returnees. The returnee needs to address a local estate agency for immediate accommodation needs.

Social Welfare System

In Guinea, the social welfare system includes informal and formal mechanisms. These revolve around two regimes: one contributory and the other non-contributory.Informal mechanisms concern a large majority of the Guinean population (94% according to ILO estimates) mainly workers in the informal sector and those in the agricultural sector. These groups have no access to any formal social welfare mechanism. They have to resort to multiple alternative methods, in particular, family solidarity. The contributory social welfare or social security system provides coverage for civil servants and employees in the private sector and para-public sectors, who represent barely 6% of the population. It is made up of two branches, the first for public service workers and the second for workers in the private and para-public sectors. However, the level of coverage remains very low.

The informal sector, which accounts for around 70% of total employment. is difficult to capture and still not sensitive to pensions. Given the weakness of the compulsory social security system provided by the state, some private insurance companies offer life insurance products (retirement, sickness, death, and professional accident survival) and non-live insurance or property and casualty insurance (fire, various accidents, and risks). In total, the National Insurance Fund for Private Sector Employees (CNSS )provides salaried workers in the private and para-public sectors the service for family benefits, old age, disability, industrial accident survivor, and illness. The National Insurance Fund for Public Civil Servant (CNPSAE) provides family benefits, old age, disability, professional accident survivor, and occupational disease. There are some insurance companies like UGAR, SOGAM, SONAG, SUNU, NSIA based in Conakry and in regional towns, which can cover occupational disease, periodic medical checkup, treatment cost up to 80% of the total cost. The registration starts by providing an ID card copy, birth certificate, residential certificate, the commitment to pay insurance fees (the beneficiary's financial participation depends on the kind of services to be covered by insurance), the insurance general conditions approval, and the process can be concluded after signing the agreement.

Pension System

The law provides for a full pension and early retirement. For a full pension, the worker must have reached 50, 60, or 65 years of age (depending on the profession) with at least 180 months (15 years) of contributions. The minimum retirement age is 50 years.

Vulnerable Groups

The initiative within the Ministry of Social Affairs, Promotion of Women's Interests, and Childhood to create a social development and solidarity fund for women, young people, the elderly, and the disabled are not yet operational.

General information on education

In the Republic of Guinea there are the following education levels: Child care/ nursery 0,5-3; kindergarden 3-6, primary school 7-12, secondary school 13-16, lycée 17-19, vocational/professional/technical school from 17, and university from 20. In Guinea, the risk of never having been to school is relatively higher for girls. The results from 2016 of the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey by UNICEF (MICS) indicate that the girls represent 52% of 5-6 years old who have never been to school. The rural population concentrates a high proportion of the young population never been to school with 84% against 16% in urban areas.

Coast, loans and stipends

Public general educational institutions are tuition-free. The enrolment in general educational institutions starts in September and the school year begins in October. The returnee can be registered at any public educational institution for free, or any private educational institution after meeting the admission requirements. For yearly training, the cost ranges from EUR 100 to EUR 300. For modular training (Computer literacy, English Language, driving license, ...etc), the cost ranges from EUR 25 to EUR 100 per term.

Approval and verification of foreign diplomas

Guinean citizens who have completed their primary or secondary education abroad can request to have their certificates recognized and accredited in Guinea. Reognition and accreditation of foreign certificates is the National Service for Educational Examination (Service National d'examen et de concours scolaire) at the Ministry of National Education and Literacy. The procedure for application is identical for primary and secondary education. In addition to the request for recognition, the applicant must submit the original certificate issued by the foreign school and a translated copy in three samples. The translation must be provided by an authorized translator. Additional documents may be required by the relevant ministry.

Access for returnees

Registration procedure: The returnee should address a local education directorate for the registration of children at school. For approval verification of foreign diploma, the returnees should retain their child's school accreditations if the child has attended school outside of Guinea. Likewise, the returnees should retain their own qualification diploma.

Required documents: Birth certificate, educational level certificate and vaccination card

General Situation of children and migrants

The Guinean infant population is estimated in 2013 at 5,746,000 for a global population of 11,745,000. Guinea has signed, adopted, and ratified without major reservations most of the conventions and protocols on children's rights and human rights. In 2008, it adopted a national law called The Child's Code, the purpose of it is to bring national legislation into conformity with the provisions of these conventions and protocols. This code brings together all laws relating to the children's rights and protection. The child protection legal framework also includes other laws, including those of the criminal code, the criminal procedures code, and the civil code. The Guinean child protection monitoring committee (CG/SPDE), created in 1995, is the main government coordinating body on children's rights protection. The competent courts for minors are the Children's Judge, the Children's Court, the Special Chamber for Minors, the Juvenile Appeal Court. The current quality of birth registration and the registration rate are not satisfactory. Several customs and practices justify and perpetuate discrimination and violence against children and women, such as early and forced marriage, female genital mutilation, "confiage", etc. There is no progress in some essential grounds for the children's survival and development, especially in rural areas. So, infant mortality and infant malnutrition rates in Guinea remain higher than the average observed for sub-Saharan Africa

No child may leave the national territory if he/she does not carry a special authorization established by the authorities of his/her place of residence with the agreement of the parents, the guardian, or the person taking care of the child. If not poverty, the children parents social background does not influence their access to health care and education.

(Non-) governmental actors dealing with children's well-being and rights

Some of the main organizations dealing with children's well-being, their rights, and their protection are:

- Unicef Guinée
- Plan Guinée
- Terre Des Hommes
- Child Fund
- ONG Sabou Guinée :
- ONG Association guinéenne des Assistantes sociales (AGUIAS);

Migrant assistance in Guinea

The Virtual Counselling project is implemented by the International Organization for Migration (IOM) in Germany. Migrants living in Germany who are considering a return are offered return and reintegration counselling by IOM staff in Guinea. Local IOM staff can be contacted in French, English and local languages through online messengers.

This service aims to empower migrants to return in dignity by informing them about various return and reintegration options and assistance programmes.
